Dooney's Gentle Hum

A Tribute Song

Intro - piano, strings

Verse 1

When bath time finished, and you heard his call,
A tiny Yorkie, ready to enthrall.
You'd run right over, sniffing with delight,
Knowing he smelled fresh, shining ever so bright.
You'd stand on hind legs, a happy, eager plea,
Wanting to be carried, just for him to see.
A faithful shadow, always by his side,
With warmth and comfort, nowhere left to hide.

Chorus

Oh Dooney, sweet Dooney, seventeen years we shared,
A bond of pure love, beyond all compared.
My husband's dear heart, now aches for your touch,
Missing his best friend, oh so very much.

Verse 2

By the piano organ, a silent, watchful friend,
You'd sit beside him, until the very end.
Each gentle melody, a rhythm in your soul,
Making his spirit, happy and whole.
A constant presence, steady and so true,
His quiet companion, always there with you.
Through every late night, every passing day,
You chased the lonely shadows far away.

Chorus

Oh Dooney, sweet Dooney, seventeen years we shared,
A bond of pure love, beyond all compared.

My husband's dear heart, now aches for your touch,
Missing his best friend, oh so very much.

Bridge

He feels you're at the Rainbow Bridge, looking down from above,
A guardian angel, wrapped in endless love.
His deepest longing, to see you once more,
Whispering softly, "Dooney, seat on my lap," just like before.

Instrumental - piano, cello

Final Chorus

Oh Dooney, sweet Dooney, seventeen years we shared,
A bond of pure love, beyond all compared.
My husband's dear heart, now aches for your touch,
Missing his best friend, oh so very much.

Outro

At peace now, dreaming, on fields of softest green,
Waiting patiently, a beautiful, quiet scene.
His comforting spirit, forever near and true,
He knows one day, he'll be right there with you.

Outro - piano fade
