Wangwang's Unbroken Heart

A Tribute Song

Intro - piano, cello

Verse 1

A tender spirit, with no place to call home,
Through lonely shadows, she would softly roam.
For her little ones, her heart burned so bright,
A mother's fierce devotion, a guiding light.
Though life was harsh, she trusted each face,
With open heart, she'd offer her grace.
A gentle soul, misunderstood and so meek,
Only for others, her pure love would speak.

Chorus

Oh, Wangwang, your memory we hold near,
Though just one day, you banished our fear.
A love so pure, a spirit so deep,
In our hearts forever, your promise we keep.

Verse 2

Through shadowed days, her happy heart still shone,
A hopeful warmth, a love all her own.
To friendly hands, she'd offer a plea,
A gentle soul, yearning only to be free.
With final breath, a tender, soft embrace,
A mother's last kiss, left a heartbreaking trace.
Her silent goodbye, a tear in the air,
A burden of pain, too heavy to bear.

Chorus

Oh, Wangwang, your memory we hold near,
Though just one day, you banished our fear.

A love so pure, a spirit so deep,
In our hearts forever, your promise we keep.

Bridge

Never forgotten, your fight we will wage,
For all that you suffered, on life's cruel stage.
We'll seek your justice, with all of our might,
Until your pure spirit finds endless light.

Instrumental - piano, strings

Final Chorus

Oh, Wangwang, your memory we hold near,
Though just one day, you banished our fear.
A love so pure, a spirit so deep,
In our hearts forever, your promise we keep.

Outro

Now free she runs, with children so bright,
No more sorrow, just endless delight.
The life she deserved, finally found,
On peaceful ground, forever unbound.

Outro - piano fade
